Members of Bench and Bar Make Addresses of Welcome-Many Attend Session

In the presence of spectators who literally packed the courtroom, Horace W. Vaughan and Seba Cormany Huber were administered the oath of office by Judge Clemons at ten o'clock yester-day morning. With the oath subscrib-ed to, Mr. Vaughan qualified as judge ed to, Mr. Vaughan qualified as judge of the local federal court, succeeding Judge Sanford B. Dole, and Mr. Huber became district attorney for the United States in the Territory of Hawaii. With Judge Clemons on the bench there sat Governor Pinkham, Chief Justice Robertson of the territorial supreme court, and Judge Dole.

The simple ceremony opened with Marshal Smiddy calling the court to order, as the audience rose, while Judge Clemons and those on the bench took their seats. Clerk George R. Clark read the commissions of the new officials of the court. The regulation oath was administered first to Judge Vaughan, who immediately took a seat in the bench with Judge Clemons, and trict attorney. Both new officials were congratulated by the court.

Judge Dole's Farewell

Judge Dole led off in the addresses of the occasion. He said that a judge is not supposed to have friends or en the discharge of his duties; but that, if any exist, they should not be considered at all in the set and cut work of the court, for, he said, justice is always a support to the ideal things in life.

Judge Vaughan told how deeply he appreciated the kindly and unfailing courtesies that have been extended to him during his short residence in Honolulu, both by the court, members of the bar and other citizens. He would to the best of his ability, discharge the duties which the President had, in appointing him to such high and honorable position, placed on his shoulders. Governor's 'Blood Infusion'

Governor Pinkham said something about the infusion of new blood into the federal judiciary. Race problems, financial control and national defense whatever they might have to do with the judiciary, especially the federal branch, played in Hawaii, perhaps, a more important part than elsewhere in the United States. He thought it that with the solution of these problems in Hawaii the mainland should be represented through this infusion of new blood.

Hon. W. O. Smith, George A. Davis and other attorneys made short ad. probably more than a fair share of dresses of welcome to the new officials what may be called 'original law.' dresses of welcome to the new officials and paid Judge Dole an appropriate tribute on his retirement from the bench and public life. During the present week there be no trials in the federal court, Dis trict Attorney Huber devoting himself to getting acquainted with the work of his office and a survey of the cases now on hand for disposal. Probably the first trials will be held on Tuesday of next week. It was announced yester-day that Mr. Huber would retain Judge Samuel B. Kemp as assistant district attorney. The grand jury will probably be called in two weeks' time. Appointed For Six Years

Mr. Huber's commission, signed by President Wilson and attested by Attorney General Gregory, which was exhibited in court yesterday, makes his term of office six years from March 22,

A large portrait of Judge Dole was hung on the Wall back of the bench. Portraits of Chief Justice Robertson, who was a former federal judge, and of the late Judge Morris M. Estee have ong since decorated the court room. It is the intention on the retirement of Judge Clemons that his portrait shall hung on the same side of the wall with that of Judge Dole. A mass of beautiful cut flowers decorated the judges' stand. Flowers were also placed in the office of the district atorney and in Judge Vaughau's cham-

Judge Clemons' address was, in full, as follows:

Judge Clemons' Address

"Were it not that Judge Dole must have become bardened to the constant approval of his fellowmen, it might be more embarrassing for us to utter these praises in his presence," said Judge Clemons. "But what we can say will add little to his preeminent place in the respect and affection of the people, both old and young.

"When one in public life attains such a place, like that of Washington, first in the hearts of his countrymen, he may be regarded as an 'institution in himself, one whose exact place can not be filled nor anywhere near filled, and, with reference to Judge Dole, we do not mean his place as a mere judge, a mere expert who knows the law and how to apply it, but a public figure, who stands for the very highest ideals, for digitity, self-respect, and those admirable and endearing qualities of personal charm and force of character that in happy blending tend to strengthen our government and our institu tions, through the glorification, so to speak, of the public office held.

Feeling of Personal Loss "But of these things I am not more impetent to speak than many. I should like, however, to here express my feeling of personal loss at the re-tirement of the senior judge, and of appreciation of his unfailing courtesy, consideration, and fine spirit of coperation.

'His greeting to me at the wharf on his return from a long vacation in Europe in 1911, I remember well: 'How are you, partner?'-a little thing, but then Mr. Huber was sworn in as dis- it gives as well as anything the keynote of the pleasure and satisfaction from my own view point, of our relations as associates on the bench. No pride of opinion had he, no arrogance, his head was not turned by his honors or popularity. One could at all times have a fair, a full, and a sympathetic hearing from Judge Dole. And, closely as I have know him, he has never shown in public or private the slightest relaxation from the highest ideals of dignity and self respect. I have never known him to lose his temper of selfcontrol, even under the most trying circumstances Judge Dole's Work "It is a gratifying fact, as I be-lieve an examination of the cases will confirm, that Judge Dole has never been reversed in any case in which he did not have a considerable body of authority with him, and in any case that has gone through all the appellate courts he has had in support of his view at least three of the judges who have passed upon the point at issue. Counting as one case certain re cent habens corpus proceedings all involving the same question, he has in all his twelve years' service on this bench been reversed but very few times, and very few times even with these cases. To us who appreciate the just room for differences of opinion on law questions, this is a notable record. As compared with the average judge, he has created

Judicial and Literary Style "His written opinions, particularly in admiralty, are unsurpassed for clear ness, directness, and simplicity, and for a refreshing freedom from stiltedness or legal pedantry. Even his jury charges are models of literary style. His official letters, wherein tact and diplomacy have been called for, may some of them be fairly called 'state

'He has fulfilled the demands of public office in the broadest sense, Thus, for years he has been the one it his office to the best of his ability and public life most often called upon for public life most often called upon for public speeches and occasional addresses, and, I suppose, has never refused a public speeches and occasional addressrequest to contribute, always something most appropriate, and of a high stand ard, to the holiday and special nem bers of our numerous local publications. Hawrii Fortunate

"Hawaii has been fortunate, and so has the nation, and so have the foreign untions with whom we have been in close contact, that through the days of the provisional government, and of the Republic of Hawaii, the transition perind on annexation, the beginnings of the territorial government, and twelve years of administration of a judicial ffice of high responsibility, the affairs of these islands have been in the hands of a man of his high character, sound judgement and statesmanship, qualities the negative of which might ensity have tended to international ill-feel not to disaster.

Good Wishes to New Officials "To the incoming judge of this court. I can only say that we wish him all the satisfaction that a successful career on the bench may bring. -which means benefit to himself and to us all. From his proven disposition to be tolerant of other people's views and considerate of their feelings, and jealous lature appropriated the money for the of due respect for the court and the judges, I am led to believe that he is from whom we may expect justice at all times and such mercy as occasions may require. QUINN APPOINTS KEKUMANO CLERK

Fourth Circuit Jurist Draws Upon Republican Party For One Court Officer

Democratic political circles were startled by the announcement yesterday that Judge Clem K. Quinn of the fourth circuit had picked a clerk from the ranks of the opposition party to serve with him in Hilo. It was understood that when Quinn took office he would look for efficiency in his court officers and Louis Kekumano, who is slated for the position of clerk, has made a record for himself in the government. ernment service during the past afteen years. He was in the employ of the postoffice under the Republic and transferred to the local tax office, where he remained for many years, finally being promoted to the position in Ewa as dep-ty assessor.

The change in the territorial administration caused Kekumano to lose his billet and he succeeded in getting the position as assistant clerk of the last house of representatives. The land office was his next position and now he has been offered the clerkship of the fourth circuit bench. Judge Quinn was true to the claims of his party in so far as trying to get dyed in the wool Democrats to take the position and several capable men were offered the position, but for one reason or another were compelled to decline. Kekumano has been a lifelong friend of Judge Quinn's and being a thoroughly capable man was offered the clerkship, which, it is understood, he will accept He has gone to Hile.
